

Prevailing Wage and Apprenticeship Compliance

Simplify the process, and unlock your full Inflation Reduction Act tax credits

The Inflation Reduction Act (IRA) offers significant tax incentives for renewable energy projects, but only if you meet and correctly document the Prevailing Wage and Apprenticeship (PWA) requirements. Projects that meet PWA requirements receive up to five times the base tax credit, making compliance essential for maximum returns.

We are ready to guide you every step of the way. Our dedicated IRA compliance specialists will help you understand and follow the wage guidelines, maintain the detailed construction and labor records, and provide the documentation needed for IRS submission.

Additionally, Terracon maintains a pool of registered construction craft laborer apprentices who can quickly mobilize to your project sites and integrate with local field crews. Terracon journeyworkers mentor apprentices to maintain consistent, quality work and compliance with the Department of Labor's apprenticeship ratios.

Optimizing project cost, efficiency, and compliance has never been easier. With Terracon's nationwide footprint and the nation's largest fleet of geotechnical drill rigs, our integrated approach offers rapid deployment to your project sites with skilled, competent, and IRA/PWA-compliant crews. Our IRA compliance specialists handle the documentation to meet the requirements, maximize your tax incentives, and remove the complexity for your team.
